
Standing on the Threshold

We pass through many thresholds throughout our lives. These passages may be something as seemingly mundane as crossing through the front or back doors of our living space, or as life changing as facing the daunting task of making a major decision. During this retreat time we will explore what it means to be passing through these thresholds.

Outside of the opening and closing sessions, participants will be invited to engage in optional reflection activities.

Keeping silence will be a key component of the weekend.

“..we have found ourselves standing on a threshold and pondering whether we have the courage and resilience to step into unknown territory.

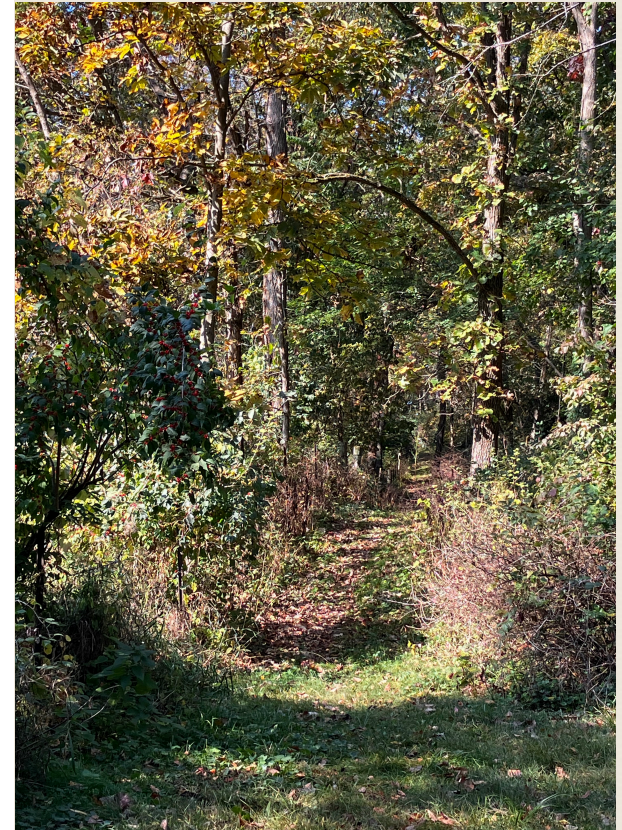

Such crossing-over places signify transformation and that can be scary or soul-stirring.”
